The Continuing Education Office works in cooperation with academic colleges, schools, departments, and programs to extend the resources of Texas State beyond the traditional campus classroom. Professional staff in the Continuing Education Office collaborate with faculty, staff, and external providers to offer seminars, workshops, conferences, and short courses that align with the educational and marketable skills needs of the many communities Texas State serves. The Continuing Education Office plans, budgets, markets, collects fees, manages registration, and ensures ongoing improvement of continuing education programming through regular evaluation and review.

These programs are generally non-credit in nature. Some programs receive Continuing Education credits, and those who successfully complete these designated programs are awarded Continuing Education Units (CEU). One CEU is awarded to a person who completes a ten-contact-hour program.
